Board Members: There WILL be a short board meeting at 7:15.

The 2009 show is over, and from all we've heard, it was a great success. Chuck and I missed being there to take part in all the fun, but just wait til next year! I hope the photographer got a picture of the trophy table! Sue always makes it look phenomenal. It's wonderful being able to scoop up some candy corn as one passes by...

The next important items on the club's agenda are the Christmas party and club elections.

Speaking of elections, the nominating committee is offering the following slate of officers and board members for 2010:

President - Walt Sanderson Vice Pres - Jo Gahm
Secretary - Tammy Sasso Treasurer - Jeff Gahm
Board: Lois Milligan, Noel Clarke, Willie Crawford

Hope everyone will come to the meeting, armed with input!
See you Tuesday, the 17th!

Willie

Board Meeting Minutes

October 13, 2009

Walt opened the meeting at 7:15 PM.

Old Business

A cluster fund was discussed again. Willie felt it is important to approve signatures on the account. Tommy said we many need to look at another show site if we are short on room at the show. Willie had talked to Jim Gibson of Kennesaw and he thinks we will be all right. Jo will sell catalogs.

New Business

Walt appointed a nominating committee. Helen, Deb, and Tammy will present a slate next month. At 7:33 PM. Willie moved that we adjourn the meeting and Tammy seconded the motion.

Board Members Present: Walt Sanderson, Willie Crawford, Tammy Sasso, Sue Yates

General Meeting Minutes

Walt opened the meeting at 7:33 PM.

Secretary's Report

Helen moved and Chase seconded that we accept the minutes from last month's meeting. The motion was passed.

Treasurer's Report

Sue gave a report of our current finances. Willie moved to accept the report and Tammy seconded the motion. The motion was accepted.

New Business

Jobs necessary for the show were discussed.

Jo will sell catalogs.

Kaitlyn and Deb will help Walt transport judges.

Sue needs some one Thursday and Friday to give her breaks.

On Wednesday Walt, Thomas, Duane, and Tammy will help load and unload the truck.

The club will pick up the expense of parking and lunch for those who work.

Glad-lock Bag Commercial

Originally written by Walt Hutchens <WALTAH@DELPHI.COM>, HTML conversion by Farokh Irani

You find the darndest things when you travel. You probably recall the commercials that show a young lady deciding it's better to use a Glad-Lock ziplock bag if you're going to be in a phone booth with a bag of bees or when you're going to put a bag of piranhas in your aquarium. But what about the really effective commercials you never saw? Blowing across the motel parking lot this morning when I took da streetie out for her walk was the following, stamped REJECTED in big red letters.

GLAD-LOCK bag commercial #7:

[Ornate gardens in front of opera house. Night -- limousines glide to a halt, beautifully dressed people get out. Obviously a gala occasion is beginning.]

[Close up of limousine stopping. Chauffeur and assistant in matching uniforms get out of left and right front doors and open two right rear doors of this stretch vehicle. Mme. Mary Clairry alights from one; she is dressed in black and white, for an evening at the opera. From the other, a beautiful Landseer Newfoundland emerges.]

Voice, off camera: "Mary Clairry doesn't use Glad-Lock ziplock bags".

[The Newf takes a couple of steps off the walk and squats. We cannot see details but the position is distinctive. No one takes the slightest notice except Mme. Clairry who gives her head a small shake. But she's prepared: she takes her 'ordinary' ziplock bag from her clutch evening bag, turns it inside out, slips a hand inside, and steps over to the Newf.]

Voice: "She's about to clean up after her Newfoundland companion with the ordinary bag".

[A doorman in livery (an older, very dignified gentleman) steps up to Mme. Clairry, pulls a Glad-Lock bag from the package and extends it to her.]

"Excuse me, Mademoiselle Clairry but we're expecting this evening's performance to be lengthy. May I offer you a Glad-Lock ziplock bag with the Yellow and Blue Make Green seal"?

[She's slightly nervous about the decision, but gets it right. We see her stoop slightly, make a scooping motion, run her fingers along the top of the well filled bag (we can't see the contents), and deposit it in her clutch bag. She glides off up the walk, the Landseer in a faultless heel position, no leash. She smiles for photographers, says a word or two to her companion as flashbulbs pop.]

[Cut to scene inside opera house. Mme. Clairry is seated in the front row. The Landseer occupies a section of floor next to her, where two seats have been removed and a natural sheepskin laid down. As the fat lady steps forward on the stage, Mme Clairry is relaxing with the bulging clutch on her lap; the Landseer raises his head.]

Voice: "Glad-Lock ziplock bags. When an ordinary bag just won't do".

[Fade]

Across the bottom of the page someone has scrawled "NO! No matter how well trained, the dog SHOULD BE LEASHED in public!"
